
Preface

Want to know why I wrote this book?

We immigrants bear a great responsibility for America's slide into Socialism. Once, immigrants came here and kissed the ground in gratitude. They wanted to forget where they came from. They were proud to become Americans. They did not ask for handouts. They only asked for the opportunity to work hard. But the millions of us who have come here more recently have taken America completely for granted. We have come here from Mexico and poorer countries, to take advantage of its economic opportunities and become rich someday. Even those from Saudi Arabia, China and richer countries have come here to have their babies, so someone in the family will have citizenship. They have used the safety and security of America as their insurance policy so they can always come here if there is trouble at home. Even the U.N., which undercuts and criticizes us at every turn, has arranged for its workers to get green cards after working here for just two years! And America has demanded nothing in return for all of the security, riches and benefits she has given to us.

We all come here, but our loyalties remain in our "home" countries. We socialize within our own ethnic enclaves; speak our own languages; eat our own ethnic foods; send our money back "home;" go "home" for weddings and the holidays and plan to go "home" when we retire. Whenever we go back "home," we spend our money lavishly; far more than the locals can afford; priding ourselves on how successful we are.

Meantime, over here, we earn a great living; send our kids to the best schools; buy the biggest houses and cars; and live the American Dream. We pretend we were actually living a better life back "home," but somehow, magically, now live in the United States.

We never ask ourselves, if it is so much better back "home," why are we living here? We know that over here, rapacious politicians and bureaucrats do not harass us. Over here, the government does not prevent us from educating ourselves and earning whatever our talents deserve. But we never bother to learn about the great American traditions or its unique Constitution.

We have never even read the Bill of Rights and do not understand that its sole purpose was to act as a check on government; to prevent the American government, its politicians and its bureaucrats from doing to us here, what is done to us back “home.” Most of our college-educated kids seem to know only one section of the Constitution and seem to believe that the First Amendment exists to allow them to mouth off about Republicans and run down our Country. It never occurs to us that all we are doing is taking and that we are giving nothing back to our adopted country.

And now, as the Socialists who are in power are tearing this country limb from limb, we do nothing to defend her. We don't speak out about the flaws in the countries we have left behind; how few freedoms are available there; how much discrimination takes place over there; and how much corruption we dealt with back “home.” We don't talk about how great America is. How much freedom it has given us. How we are free to pursue our own happiness without interference by government bureaucrats. Instead, we scornfully condemn America for past wrongs to Native American Indians and African slaves, that were no different from what we did in the not so distant past (and in some cases still do) in our “home” countries—the maintenance and support of caste systems, the discrimination against various ethnic and religious groups; the slaughter and cruelty of the Partition of India, the Killing Fields of the Khmer Rouge and the Disappeared of Argentina. Need I go on? Need I go back more than 100 years to the even greater cruelties and barbaric practices of our “home” countries? No. Compared to our “home” countries, America is truly the Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave.

We don't discuss these things even with our own kids. So when our kids are finished with University; one and all, they return as flaming liberals, running down this country with every breath; advocating Socialist solutions to every problem; and screaming about discrimination at every turn, discrimination that is truly petty compared to what we left behind. And we stay silent. Hoping someone else will defend this country. And that somehow, this country will not become poor and corrupt like the countries we have left behind. I believe that the time has come for us to speak out and defend our Country and save it from slipping into a Socialist quagmire.

I grew up in a Third World country and watched as Socialists came into power by pandering to the unions, demonizing the rich and promising the poor they would be looked after. Once they came into power, they changed everything and transformed the country.

Like heat seeking missiles, they went after whatever made the existing upper class powerful, with the sole aim of neutralizing them and bringing them down. They only cared about power and control. They did not care that they also brought down the economy of the country. The greatest wealth of my native country was in land. They nationalized private agricultural land holdings and subdivided them into small plots, which they gave to their supporters. Compensation for these lands was set at valuations roughly 20% of existing values. And the actual compensation was not paid for 15 or more years. They instituted a wealth tax, ostensibly to prevent people who had inherited their wealth from keeping it and to make them share it with the poor. So whoever was once rich because of land ownership or inherited wealth, now became poor. In case some few remained rich, at one time, Socialists raised the marginal tax rate to as much as 90%.

They nationalized the private school system, one of the finest in Asia at the time, with a 93% literacy rate; and converted it into a public education system, purportedly to equalize opportunity so everyone could get the same education. But they, of course, sent their kids to the finest private schools in England or France, paying for them with foreign currency that was extremely scarce and expensive but available to the connected. Everyone else, of course, got mediocre education. They stopped teaching in English, the universal language which unified Tamil and Singhalese ethnic groups and which allowed our children to get any job they wanted abroad. The teachers who failed to educate in school during the day, conducted class for pay in their homes after school. And the demand to learn English was so great that the classes overflowed from the teachers' homes into the garden; and had to be conducted over loudspeakers. Meantime, the Socialists required all school education to be conducted in the native language, spoken only by a few million people. And they reserved all government jobs for those who could speak the native language, thus shutting out the English speakers and those minorities who spoke a different language; and causing extreme bitterness between the two ethnic groups that later spilled out into a Civil War that lasted for 30 years.

The Socialists encouraged union militancy. Virtually every "grievance" was a cause for strikes that lasted for months. Workers in related companies were required to strike in solidarity with the first. No one crossed picket lines for fear of violence. “General strikes,” where everyone went on strike, became common; bringing the economy to a standstill each time. The Socialists adopted and enforced union rules that made it impossible to terminate any worker. They proclaimed so many holidays, and mandated so much vacation and sick leave, that employers had to hire two people for every job. They promulgated a series of regulations that made it virtually impossible for any private company to make a profit. In fact, even if a company was in bankruptcy, it was still required to keep its workers on its payroll.

They terrorized and nationalized private corporations in virtually every sector of the economy; vastly expanded the role of government; and provided government jobs in the newly nationalized company to their supporters. They required permits for virtually everything. And the government bureaucrats, aka the “permit wallahs,” who controlled the issue of those permits; viewed their role as the gatekeeper who would keep the gate locked at all costs. So, in order to get a permit, the corporation would have to pay “baksheesh” or make under-the-table payments to the bureaucrat. And the only way the corporation could stay in business was by co-operating with the Socialists; putting a Minister’s cousin, nephew or other relative on their Boards; and making sure all donations went only to the Socialist’s party. If they openly supported the opposing party, their businesses would be nationalized. In at least one such instance, a private business was bankrupted by constant strikes and union demands. Then it was taken over and handed to the union leaders!

Everything, even matters under litigation, became politicized. It no longer mattered whether one was right or wrong. All that mattered was whom you knew. And there were two sets of rules. If you were a supporter of the party in power; then you could do anything. If you were not a supporter, you were out of luck.

As each election neared, it would be obvious that the economy had gone south, the infrastructure was crumbling, the buses were not running on time and food had become scarce. Furthermore, though the rich had become poorer; the poor remained poor. The only real change was that the Socialists had gotten richer.

Sometimes, if the Socialists were losing badly, they instigated general strikes by the unions. Things would magically get out of hand. Violence would increase. The leader of the government would declare Martial Law, impose a curfew, and very regretfully intone that elections had to be postponed until the security situation returned to normal. This meant that the opposing party would have wasted money and energy running for elections, which would no longer be held as scheduled. And the Socialist leader would get an extended term of office. But sooner or later, elections would have to be held. But the economy would still be in a shambles.

And so, the Socialists would suddenly get religion and appear at various Temples. And they would offer yet more benefits—free rice, free sugar. But there wasn't enough to go around and rice, sugar and other staples had to be rationed. You would need to exchange a coupon to get your weekly allotment of rice and sugar. And the Socialists would demonize the rich once again. And once again, they would profess their undying love and care for the poor.

Need I go on? It seemed unbelievable that this could happen in America, the richest country on Earth. But I can see the pattern being repeated here. And now, three years after the Obama Administration's professed love for the poor, you can see it for yourself. Our economy is in a shambles; our poor are poorer than when he came into office; people have lost their jobs and their health care coverage; people have lost their homes; home values are underwater; gas prices have more than doubled; and Obama has to rig the numbers to pretend that people have found new jobs.

As so, I decided to write this book. But the more I thought about it, the more confused I became. Obama is a brilliant politician who does only what he chooses. If he chooses not to do something, even something he promised, like giving gays or illegal immigrants more rights, he won't do it. So, I knew that when he did something, it was intentional. But while saying the opposite, why was Obama doing so many things that were destroying our economy? Even if he were totally focused on keeping power like a Socialist; why would he do so many things that were bringing our country to its knees? Why was he constantly going before Arab Dictators who gave their people no rights, who wouldn't even allow Christians or Jews in their country and who threatened to annihilate Israel; and yet apologizing for our country as though it was America that was doing something wrong? There was something more Obama was doing. Something not quite American. Something sinister and malevolent. But I couldn't quite put my finger on it.

I knew Obama had been a Muslim and that his father and stepfather were practicing Muslims, while his mother had been just a free spirit. All his 6 siblings are still Muslims. In the Madrassah he attended, kids were taught only the Qur'an and Shari'ah law. They learned only in Arabic. The clever ones, and Obama was surely among them, learned the Qur'an in a few years.

I knew he had roomed with two Muslim foreign students at Occidental and possibly registered as a foreign student and went under the name Barry Soetoro. I knew he had gone to Pakistan for a couple of years at a time when American citizens were not allowed to travel there. But all these details were deliberately kept fuzzy by the media. In this Internet age, when more information is available than ever before, how is it that we have a President about whom we know so little?

I also knew that once Obama was a Muslim, he could not convert, i.e., commit the Muslim crime of Apostasy, without being liable for the Muslim death penalty. And yet, he claimed to have become a Christian. But that was in Reverend Jeremiah Wright's America-hating, Jew-hating "church" which was anything but Christian. This caused me to suspect his bona fides as a Christian.

But why did it matter if he was still a Muslim? There were two reasons: Muslim rulers all rule as Dictators, collecting all of their country's wealth, giving their subjects no rights and no freedoms, and keeping their subjects in poverty, totally dependent on their ruler. The other reason was that a Muslim ruler would impose Shari'ah law, which because it treated women as slaves, executed gays, banned music and concerts and even banned pets; was diametrically opposed to our U.S. Laws. This caused me to worry about what Obama would do to us.

I looked around at Europe and realized that Islamists had almost converted Europe into a Caliphate. Islamists have sent their shock troops of vast numbers of illegals into Europe where they exercise their religious right to have four wives and many children and claim welfare and benefits for all of them. With this incentive they have produced large numbers of children in European countries that have negative birth rates of the native population. Inevitably, as the Militant Islamists openly boast, Muslims will overtake the native European populations with their numbers. Even now, we can see this in the cities of England where, as the Muslims approach a majority, they commence marching, protesting and demanding more accommodation to their Shari'ah laws and even parallel legal systems for them to follow.

Once I reviewed Orthodox Islam, I realized that Shari'ah law was an integral part of being a Muslim. And I recognized that Muslims were obliged to follow every aspect of Shari'ah and ignore any other laws, including the laws of the countries that took in the Muslims. The results have stunned those Europeans who have followed what is happening. Muslims are totally disregarding the laws and traditions of Europe and, using violence and threats, are slowly converting European countries into Muslim ones.

Once I realized that Europe is being transformed, it became obvious that Obama's plan is to do the same thing here. Not openly, but stealthily. No matter how you looked at it, there was no escaping the conclusion. Take a look at what he has done.

Why has he completely banned domestic oil drilling wherever he has the power to do so, while proclaiming that the country is producing more oil under his administration than any other? Why has he prevented deep sea, and even routine undersea drilling in the Gulf, off the East and West coasts and in the Arctic sea and put hundreds of thousands out of work; while subsidizing deep sea drilling in Brazil? Why has he eliminated coal as a source of American energy, by refusing to open federal lands for coal mining and promulgating rules that make it impossible to open up a new coal plant or ever repair an old one? Why has he canceled the Keystone pipeline that would have given us thousands of jobs and a friendly nearby source of energy years into the future? Did he not realize this made us even more dependent on Middle Eastern OPEC oil? Of course, he did. (He's brilliant, right?)

Meanwhile, the sleight of hand is to promote the development of Green Energy. But even as America pours billions into this effort, the Green Energy contribution to our energy needs is now, and into the foreseeable future will be, miniscule. Look behind the curtain and you can see that the only practical result of Green Energy is crony capitalism, where Obama rewards his supporters with billions in public funds; the money “disappears” and Green Energy companies go bankrupt one after another.

Why has Obama run up $6 Trillion in federal debt in three years; while the 43 previous Presidents had run up only $10 Trillion in debt in all the previous 233 years of our country’s existence? Why, after promising to go through the budget line by line to eliminate wasteful spending, does Obama have virtually no cuts, but has hundreds of billions of new programs and a big new entitlement that will generate hundreds of billions more of deficits. Doesn’t he realize he is bankrupting the country? Of course, he does. (He’s brilliant, right?)

Why is he demonizing the rich, taking away private property, taking over 20% of our economy with his Obama Care and constantly fighting to raise taxes and take under his control, more and more of the country’s private wealth? Why is he encouraging the poor to remain poor and dependent on him so he could be their benefactor; exactly like Muslim rulers do?

Why is he saying he was fighting the “good war” in Afghanistan, while announcing a date of withdrawal; and making rules of engagement that handicap our military and guarantee a defeat for us? Why is he returning Gitmo terrorists to Afghanistan and sending the radical Sheikh Yousuf al-Qaradawi to negotiate with the Taliban for what amounts to our surrender? Why did he ignore the freedom fighters in Iran even as they cried out to Obama for help and were gunned down by the Mullahs? Why is he endlessly pleading with Iran to talk with us about its nuclear program, even as it proceeds to develop its bomb and promises to annihilate Israel? Why is he standing by and talking while Iran’s puppet state Syria slaughters its own people who are seeking freedom? All the while assuring us he supported freedom for all. I knew he was originally a Muslim. But he claimed he was now a Christian. But what he was doing merely benefited Muslims. Whose side was he on?

Why was he saying he was deporting illegals, while suing Arizona for doing the same thing and ignoring all the sanctuary cities that were acting as a magnet for illegals; knowing all the while that Muslim Terrorists were infiltrating through our Southern border? Why is he insisting on building a Mosque in the shadow of the World Trade Center knowing full well it was a Victory Mosque celebrating the conquest of America? Why is he allowing Mega Mosques to be built throughout the heartland? Why is he converting our refugee assistance program into one that imports Somali Muslims, the most violent and barbaric of Muslims, into this country; while failing to bring in Christian Copts or Christian Iraqis, Nigerians and Chinese who are being slaughtered or oppressed? Why is he celebrating Muslim religious holidays in the White House and avoiding celebrating Christmas by running away to Hawaii during Christmas time?

Why has he issued orders that all government workers, including our soldiers going into battle, cannot say Christian prayers because they are “offensive;” while allowing Muslims to pray on the streets in Manhattan and have their Mosques use loudspeakers to blare out their call to prayer in Detroit, Dearborn and other cities across America? Why is he listening to the advice of his many White House Islamic Advisors and insisting that Islamic Terrorists not be called “Islamic Terrorists?” Why is he telling us we should be more like Europe even while Europe is going into bankruptcy, in large part because of its exploding illegal Muslim populations that take, but won’t work and don’t give back? I began to see a pattern here too.

Why is he violating the Catholic’s Constitutional Right to Freedom of Religion and dictating doctrine to the Catholics, supplanting the Pope; and issuing commands that Catholics must violate their conscience and pay for contraception and abortion pills for their workers? Why does he speak with the greatest respect for Muslims and the Muslim religion? Why does he claim he is a Christian while actively denigrating Christianity and labeling Christians “Terrorists?”

And then, . . . it dawned on me. He is not a Christian at all! He is a Muslim!! The only way to explain what he is doing is to understand that everything he is doing, he is doing to further one overarching goal—the pursuit of Stealth Jihad against this great country!

As so, this book came into being. I hope you will enjoy reading it; that you will consider the great danger facing our country; and that you will speak out and do all you can to protect what is, undoubtedly, the greatest country on earth.
